

Here's what's new in the library:

The Bunker Hill Community College Library & Learning Commons provides many services and resources to support teaching and learning at BHCC. As the Spring 2017 semester winds down, please be aware that the BHCC Librarians continue to be available to help with all of your library resources and information needs.

For Library Events, please see:

For Faculty

The BHCC Librarians provide research support, and are available to help you find and evaluate resources for your students and for you. Ask a Librarian about: scheduling information literacy instructional workshops, and resources related to academic integrity, citation, and copyright.

Contact a BHCC librarian through chat, text, phone, email, or in person. Ask us about checkout and renewals, course reserves materials, interlibrary loan and how to borrow from other libraries. All of the library's policies for use of library materials are accessible through library's website.

Check out new LibGuides on accessibility and inclusion, and more, which are topical and course-related resource guides updated regularly. For open educational resources, click on the library's OER LibGuide.

Museum Passes

As Summer approaches, a lot of us head outdoors for outdoor activities.

However, if you wish for something different to do, head indoors, and to one of the Boston area's many museums.

The library has passes to many museums.

Planning and Designing Academic Library Learning Spaces and Your BHCC Library & Learning Commons

Alison Head and others are experts on how today's college students find and use information for conducting course-related research and career information in the digital age. Alison J. Head, Ph.D., is the Executive Director of Project Information Literacy. Michael Eisenberg is the Founding Dean of the iSchool.

Professors Head and Eisenberg provide expert perspectives on how today's students learn and the role of designing academic library spaces. What they have taught us about how learning happens through well-designed library spaces has led to the continuous change and improvement of the library at BHCC. Some examples, include:

- In recent months, the library has received twelve new carrels
- New LED Lighting – entire library
- New power ready tables
- Wi-Fi – entire library
