Scope and Contents

This collection consists of various student publications created by different student organizations at BHCC between 1975 to 2025. The collection consists of student magazines, student newsletters, and yearbooks. It is unknown if the various publications have more items than what is currently available. The collection is primarily text-based and consists of student magazines, newsletters, yearbooks, books, and organizational flyers. One publication also exists virtually.

Arrangement

This collection is arranged into three series.

Collection Inventory

Series 1: Student Magazines

This series consists of various student magazines published by different student organizations throughout BHCC's history. The contents of most of the magazines are predominantly textual and consist of student writings such as essays, prose, poetry, and in some cases graphic art and photography. The writings are compiled in magazines and booklets. This series is arranged alphabetically.

Included in this series are the Kaleidoscope and TELL magazines. Kaleidoscope was a compilation of Honors English 111 student essays inspired by an overarching theme given to the students. TELL is an ongoing literary magazine published each semester that features contributions from faculty and students that is created and published by the students of English 234 – Literary Publishing. Current and previous issues of TELL are available online through the following link: TELL Magazine
