Guest Speaker

Ivette Guzman, Ph.D.
Professor, Department of Plant and Environmental Sciences, New Mexico State University (NMSU)

Dr. Ivette Guzman is a plant biochemist with a life-long passion for plants and their healing, medicinal and chemical properties. Her current interest is in integrating all aspects of plant biochemistry to allow for better understanding of plant ecophysiology, the study of plant biochemistry and metabolism of specialized metabolites as they are affected by interactions with the environment. Dr. Guzman’s research seeks to elucidate ecophysiological responses associated with a diverse collection of specialized metabolites by uncovering the mechanisms for the evolution of the molecular and biochemical pathways.

Dr. Guzman obtained her B.S. in Biology from the University of Texas, San Antonio, a M.S. in Biology from Texas Woman’s University, and Ph.D. in Agronomy and Horticulture from New Mexico State University (NMSU). She joined the faculty of NMSU in 2016.

Dr. Guzman will share her personal experience pursuing a career in STEM as a woman and minority, and how academic performance and determination allowed her to overcome barriers in her career.
Explore a career in science, engineering, and mathematics. Offered in partnership with UMass Boston, the LSAMP grant at BHCC supports opportunities for internships and career development for minority students majoring in STEM.
